SOCIAL and PERSONAL

THE Pocahontas Memorial Association met Saturday last with Mrs. D. T. Williams at the Jefferson Hotel. Mrs. Thomas Dobock presided.

Those present were: Miss Lizzie McLain, of Washington, D. C., president of the Pocahontas Memorial Association; Mrs. J. Enders Robinson, Mrs. J. Willard Craig, Mrs. M. Allen Chambers, Mrs. D. T. Williams, Mrs. J. B. Kidd, Mrs. W. W. Henry and Mrs. Herbert Cushing, of Boston.

Miss McLain gave an account of the bill before Congress by which it is hoped to secure an appropriation of $5,000 for the memorial. As the association has over $50,000 money, there is great hope of the bill passing.

Mrs. Cushing gave a charming description of the studio of William Ordway Partridge, the sculptor of the Pocahontas statue and her life-long friend. She invited the ladies present to sign her address of admiration and sympathy to the Queen of Italy, regarding the orphanage she is to establish for the children left parentless by the Sicilian disaster.

Shamrock Luncheon.
St. Patrick's Day was pleasantly marked last week by Mrs. H. R. Carter, of Ashland, who was the hostess of a shamrock luncheon the decorations and the entire menu being carried out in green.

The place cards were hand-painted shamrocks and guests were presented with shamrocks as souvenirs. Those present were Mrs. Bernard Guest, Mrs. Hill Carter, Mrs. Penland, Miss Ella Cooke, of Richmond; Mrs. Overton Howard and Miss Lou Reed.

News of Manchester

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch, No. 1102 Hall Street.

The police are of the opinion that E. N. Wilson, alias Paul Henderson, the alleged forger, now being held in the city jail, is a deserter from the United States Navy, and will take steps to ascertain whether the man is wanted by the United States authorities.

When arrested and brought to this city he was accompanied by a woman, and all of his underclothing was of the regulation style issued to sailors, and bore the name "Paul," marked in the usual navy way. When accused of being a deserter, he declared that he had papers showing his discharge from the service, and could produce them, but said that he would arrange to have them sent to him in a few days. The police do not put much faith in the statement, as they declare that a majority of deserters, when first arrested, put up the same story. To add to the police's regard, it is said that evidences of an attempt to obliterate the name on the clothes were plain. The alleged check-fisher acknowledged that the name Paul was his real name, and that he came from New York.

Paul is said to come from good people, and says they will stand by him. Counselman Gilbert Pollock, whom he has retained to defend him, has written to his father stating the circumstances of the case, and it is thought that he will come to his son's rescue.
